

Electronic Resources

Main Website (<http://cominotti.net>)

The main website is the front door to the learning system that I have launched to assist us in the classroom and beyond. On the main website, you will find information about me and my philosophies as well as links to the other sub-sites.

The Class Website (http://.cominotti.net)

Here are the specifics to your specific class with me. This site will contain any documents or handouts that are given to you in class (i.e. this document) as well as any class specific announcements or reminders.

The Journal Website (http://.cominotti.net/journal)

This is where you will submit and post your electronic journals. Remember, these journals are visible to the world (including your peers, employers, administrators, and parents). If you are not comfortable sharing something, then don't write about it here.

The Class Portal (<http://class.cominotti.net>)

Extensive use of the class portal will be made. Many universities (if not all) incorporate a learning management system or course management system into their curriculum. I have chosen to give you that experience now so that it is not so foreign to you once you reach the college level. For those of you not going to college, it will give you IT skills that you will need beyond the classroom. The class portal is where you will upload assignments, view schedules and assignment details, and other pertinent class information. This site requires a login and enrollment key. Only you and your classmates can view this site. Others (including classmates) will not be able to view you uploaded assignments or other data posted in the class portal.

Announcements and Calendar Site (<http://news.cominotti.net> and <http://calendar.cominotti.net>)

These sites are informational and designed to help you stay organized. They contain RSS feeds on their items that you can subscribe to in order to stay updated.
